

Environmental Health

Dedicated to the advancement of the environmental health professional

Volume 71, No. 8 April 2009

About the Cover:

In "Addressing Climate Change and Local Public Health: The Austin Climate Protection Program and the CDC Working Group on Climate Change Collaboration," the authors discuss how many local governments are proactively working to adapt to and mitigate the problems that are expected to result from climate change. For example, the city of Austin, Texas, and its Climate Protection Program are collaborating with CDC to incorporate climate change preparation with public health improvements.
