ABOUT THE COVER

Throughout the COVID-19 pandemic, environmental health professionals have worked tirelessly to promote the health and well-being of their communities. The National Environmental Health Association (NEHA), in partnership with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's National Center for Environmental Health and the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry, sought to recognize some of the innovative programs, activities, or strategies that were developed by state, tribal, local, and territorial health departments to deliver essential environmental health services during the pandemic. This partnership led to the development of the NEHA Environmental Health Innovation Awards. This month's cover highlights a feature story, "Environmental Health Innovations During the COVID-19 Pandemic," that shares the stories of these award winners and their innovative programs.
