Welcome Students!
There are many reasons why students should attend the 2018 AEC.

Discounted Registration
Students receive a discounted rate and gain entry to all events and education sessions. They also receive a one-year NEHA membership with their registration!

Student Reception:
Tuesday, June 26
Interact and network with other fellow students and environmental health professionals including NEHA Executive Director Dr. David Dyjack. A professional photographer will be present to provide student attendees free professional headshots!

Student Poster Session:
Monday, June 25–Tuesday, June 26
This poster session is an excellent opportunity to showcase student research, interests, or area of study to over 1,000 environmental health professionals.

Preconference Courses and Exams
Attending the 2018 AEC is a great way to advance your career to the next level. Obtain a NEHA credential or certification, or attend one of our trainings and leadership workshops.

CFOI
The Certified Foodborne Outbreak Investigator (CFOI) credential is a new offering designed for professionals involved in foodborne outbreak investigations.

Instructional Skills Training
This new one-day training course gives participants the opportunity to sharpen their presentation, demonstration, facilitation, and other key skills. The course will greatly benefit anyone who gives presentations and seek to improve their abilities.

Visit neha.org/aec/preconference for full details and to view all preconference offerings.
