ABOUT THE COVER

Environmental public health (EPH) practitioners are faced with an increasing scope and scale of population health challenges. This month's cover article, "Increasing Environmental Public Health Practitioner Capacity to Address Population Health Challenges: Evaluation Results From a Workforce Development Project," highlights an action learning initiative that was developed to increase practitioner knowledge of commonly identified EPH issues and assets, increase collective action through dialogue and shared learning, and create an EPH state action plan. The highlighted project provides evidence that using an action-learning format could serve as a workforce development approach to help practitioners address EPH challenges.
